Refreshing inspiration for
GROUPS AND CHARTERS

Pioneers of Small Ship Cruising

Lord of the Glens

Lord of the Highlands

Hebridean Princess

Why choose Hebridean Island Cruises for Your Group or Charter?

Whether for an incentive, reunion, celebration, or part of a broader package, each of our three elegant ships provides a small number of people with a unique backdrop for an unforgettable experience.

Lord of the Glens is the perfect way to explore The Caledonian Canal and the Highlands of Scotland in a relaxed atmosphere. Her classical appeal embraces timeless style with polished wood and teak decks, offering delicious cuisine and personal service for just 50 guests.

Lord of the Highlands continues the Hebridean tradition of providing the highest quality holidays afloat. A hand-picked crew takes care of guests' every need and the convivial company of just 38 fellow guests ensures that a relaxed house party atmosphere is typical on every cruise on The Caledonian Canal and the idyllic Inner Hebrides.

An iconic vessel and the epitome of understated elegance, Hebridean Princess is the ultimate vessel for groups of up to 48 guests. Delivering a style of service from a bygone era, and more akin to a private yacht than a cruise ship, the 28 cabins are uniquely and elegantly furnished with public rooms reminiscent of a stately home.

Lord of the Glens

Elegant Appeal - Classic Style

AT A GLANCE

Gross Tonnage: 729	Guest Capacity: 50
Length: 137 feet/42 metres	Cabins: 25
Draft: 2.8 metres	21 twins; 4 doubles - all with ensuite facilities
Cruising Speed: 10 knots	Guest Decks: 4
Flag/Registration: Inverness	Restaurant: Robert Louise Stevenson Restaurant
Crew Members: 18	Bar: David Livingstone Bar
	Lounges: Sir Walter Scott Lounge and David Livingstone Lounge
	Outside Viewing Areas: Forward and aft

Discover the intricate, inland waters of the Caledonian Canal, and the stunningly beautiful west coast of Scotland from on board the truly unique Lord of the Glens.

Lord of the Glens has 25 comfortably appointed cabins, all boasting hardwood finishes, ensuite facilities and views of the passing landscapes. Meals are freshly prepared on board by a loyal brigade of chefs, drawing on a bounty of locally sourced produce, whilst the Sir Walter Scott Lounge and Bar, on the upper deck, provide for magnificent all-around panoramic views of the Highland scenery.

At 150 feet, the vessel was designed to transit the network of locks and canals that cut through the heart of the Highlands. Every cruise on board Lord of the Glens journeys along the hauntingly beautiful Caledonian Canal; known as the Royal Route, following its endorsement by Queen Victoria in 1873. The canal transports guests serenely from Inverness to Fort William, and with only 50 guests on board, the emphasis is not on speed, but on style, whilst the relaxed and cosy atmosphere harks back to tailor-made travel of the old-fashioned variety.

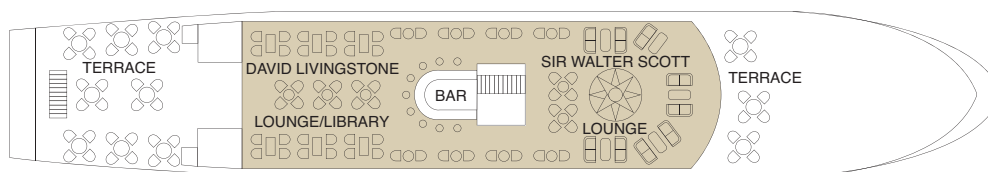

Inside, the decor embraces a classical, timeless style that is in sympathy with the lovely landscape outside. Stepping on board, guests are greeted by a colonial look. Rich, hardwood finishes, offset by cream panelling are very much reminiscent of the ancient deluxe British Pullman carriage. Unlike the mass-market tourism of many modern-day cruise ships, when Lord of the Glens pulls into harbour, be it for you to amble round the shops at Fort Augustus, or to explore the marvel that is Neptune's Staircase, you are not so much an invading force, but a group of handpicked invitees.

	Lounge: Panorama Lounge
	Outside Viewing Areas: Forward and aft

With rich hardwood finishes, offset by cream panelling, Lord of the Highlands is reminiscent of a Pullman carriage from the golden age. The splendid and elevated upper deck affords spectacular views from the picture windows as guests dine in the Caledonian Restaurant or relax in the Panorama Lounge with a drink from the well-stocked bar. There are nineteen outward facing picture windowed cabins, spread over two decks, including a suite and four with small private balconies.

The small, personal nature of Lord of the Highlands ensures a different style of cruising and attracts a friendly group of like-minded individuals. Thirty-eight fellow guests is a comfortable number to get to know, making it easy to find new friends on board. At mealtimes, everyone dines together, and there are plenty of cosy corners to continue the conversation into the evening.

The dedicated crew is hand-picked to provide the finest service. They strive day and night to ensure that this is one of the best holidays available. As a small, boutique cruise ship, guests and crew become quickly acquainted. Stewards welcome guests by name and will memorise any dietary requirements and other preferences.

Purpose-built for Scotland's Western Isles, Hebridean Princess was launched as a cruise ship by Hebridean Island Cruises in 1989. Sailing mainly from her home port of Oban, Hebridean Princess glides serenely through the water. Her small size means she has access to the remotest islands, lochs and bays beyond the reach of larger vessels. Hebridean Princess perfectly complements the wildly beautiful Scottish scenery. Carrying a maximum of 48 passengers, fellow guests soon become friends. Cruise the Hebrides in unrivalled comfort with the refined service of a floating country house.

The on board welcome is always warm, where the congenial atmosphere of a country house party is abound. Here, old friends unite and new acquaintances are quickly made. The unaccompanied need never feel alone. At the same time, guests are free to enjoy the luxury of their own private space whenever they choose.

An understated elegance pervades throughout the entire ship with a carefully chosen décor of co-ordinating furnishings, fabrics and colours. The ambience on board is redolent of a bygone era. From the Tiree Lounge to the Columba Restaurant and the 28 spacious and individually designed cabins, to the sparkling brass and teak deck. Discover peaceful corners, perfect for reading, or relax by the cosy inglenook style fireplace in the lounge. There are plenty of areas in which guests can find a perfect hideaway.

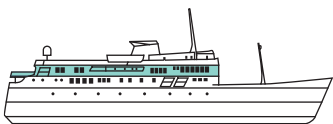

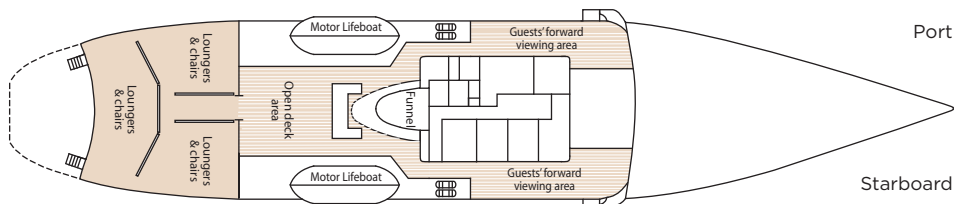

A crew-to-guest ratio of almost one-to-one ensures exceptionally high standards. This offers an unobtrusive and friendly service. It's the personal touch and constant attention to detail that sets the five-star Hebridean Princess apart from other cruise ships.
